As you know, is back from Hoover. We want him in the NIC; he wants to stay with the NIC.

Brian has also recently submitted to you a proposal on a paper dealing with Soviet and Cuban influence and capabilities in Mexico. I think this is a great idea, as do you, and Brian is uniquely qualified to do this.

Action: I would hope that we could now send the letter to Pete Wilson regretting that we must keep Brian here rather than lending him to Wilson for a year.

NIC NO. 04316
16 September 1986

MEMORANDUM FOR: Director of Central Intelligence
Deputy Director of Central Intelligence

FROM:

National Intelligence Council, Analytic Group

SUBJECT: Research Proposal on Mexico

1. During my recently completed sabbatical at the Hoover Institution I did considerable research on the subjects of Soviet and Cuban involvement and interests in Mexico and on the state of the Mexican extreme left. I will soon be submitting the preliminary results of that work for Agency clearance in the form of a chapter for a forthcoming book on Soviet-Latin American relations to be published by the Princeton University Press.

2. Now that I am back in the NIC Analytic Group I would like to continue and expand that research in a comprehensive classified assessment. I propose drafting an exhaustive appraisal of Soviet and Cuban influence, capabilities, and goals in regard to Mexico and of the strength, goals, and options of the Mexican extreme left.

3. One principal objective would be to estimate how Soviet and Cuban interests and tactics are evolving as new opportunities for them have become available as a result of Mexico's still deepening crisis. The key assumption I would want to test is that, at a minimum, Soviet and Cuban leaders are busy reviewing their options toward Mexico, seeking to expand their resources and leverage, and betting that major discontinuities in Mexican political dynamics could rapidly boost their influence over the next several years.

4. Another key objective would be to assess the strength, prospects, and possibilities of Marxist and other radical and leftist forces in Mexico and their relations with Havana and Moscow. The key assumption I would want to test here is that leftist leaders--in disarray in recent years and on the defensive as the PAN and other conservative opposition elements have made dramatic gains--are searching for a whole new strategy and reassessing their traditional view that the PRI is unassailable.

5. I propose to do this in the form of a NIC assessment that would include alternative futures analyses for the period through the mid 1990s, and possibly beyond. I would also plan separately to lay out operational suggestions, new collection requirements, and recommendations for future research that might be done by intelligence analysts and contractors. Although I envision this as a major, full time assignment, I would be available to draft or otherwise assist in the preparation of estimates and other national production as desired.

6. I would need to travel to Mexico City and other cities to consult with [redacted] embassy personnel and with knowledgeable Mexicans, and ideally to visit Moscow (for the first time) with the hope, among other things, of meeting with Soviet academic specialists whose writings on Mexico and Latin America I have been studying.

The Honorable Pete Wilson
United States Senate
Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Pete:

STAT Thank you for your letter of 30 July 1986 expressing interest in having work in your office for a year.

I fully share your concern about Mexico's crisis potential. It is in fact just this concern which leads me to the view, on reflection, that we should keep Brian working on Mexico here at the CIA. He represents a unique capability for us: an expert with the necessary breadth, vision, talent, and keen concern--very accurately expressed thus far--about Mexico's future and its significance for the United States. Also, because Brian is so well known to so many as an outstanding expert on Latin America, there is the potential for misinterpretation and for embarrassment to both our offices were it to be publicly disclosed that this senior CIA officer was working on Capitol Hill, even as a Fellow of some sort.

I will be happy to make Brian readily available to you for consultation at any time. The same applies, of course, for all our people. I am very grateful for your special interest in Mexico, and I hope that through consultations we can meet a significant portion of your needs.

Sincerely,

William J. Casey

MEMORANDUM FOR: Acting DCI

STAT

Bob, re [redacted] fate, I discussed this issue with the DCI (7 Aug.). I told him that I wanted Brian to come back to the NIC, to write some of our new-style Estimates; that Kerr and Helgeson (Brian is still an I careerist) wanted him back; and that Brian himself now prefers to come back. Thus, unless the DCI felt that Brian must go to Wilson, in the broader interests of DCI's relations with the Senate, Brian should return here. DCI then said, "OK, let's have him stay; we can make him available to Wilson on a consultant basis." I thereupon drafted the letter for DCI's signature; OCA may have improved that text here and there.

DCI apparently then forgot what he had told me, or had second thoughts -- because (1) Dick later told me that DCI had told him that he thought Brian was going to the Senate, and (2) DCI's request that you have a look at the letter of answer.

My recommendation remains to: send on the letter -- unless there is some especially sensitive DCI-Senate ingredient of which I'm unaware.

Dear Bill: Bill

STAT This is just to follow up on our conversation regarding

As we discussed at that time, we share an interest in U.S./Mexican relations and a concern that we are facing a potential crisis in Mexico that represents a serious threat to our national security.

STAT I am very pleased that you have agreed to spare Brian to work in my office for a year. I am convinced that Brian will advance our efforts to focus attention on this issue and, hopefully, to make some substantive headway.

I would like Brian's fellowship to begin here as soon as practically possible and I stand ready to assist you or your staff in making this happen.
